Lyana:

I'm actually joining you today from the ancestral unceded territories of the Musqueam, Squamish, and Tsleil-Waututh, what is currently known as East Vancouver, BC. And I have been living here for just over 20 years. And I grew and am a member, well I grew up up in the North interior of BC. I'm a member of the Stelat'en First Nation, part of the Frog Clan on my dad's side. And I still maintain strong family and community ties and connections there. And on my mother's side, I am from Unama'ki, which is also known as Cape Breton Island, and she is of Acadian and Scottish ancestry. And I am at Simon Fraser University. I'm an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Health Sciences. And yeah, and as I said, I'm really happy to be talking about this podcast.
